

New Book by Anand Krishna Released:
from Bali to Belo Horizonte - In Pursuit of the Indigenous Wisdom of Sundaland and South America to Save our Planet

The author of this book believes that we have much to learn from the ancient wisdom of so called indigenous peoples, who are often marginalized by civilized society and religious institutions. He takes you on a journey through time to meet with and learn from the Baduys of Sundaland in the Indonesian archipelago and the natives of South America.

Nature is not something that must be controlled by force and manipulated according to our needs. We must approach nature with love, compassion and understanding. We all are parts and parcels of the same Existence. It is only by living in harmony with nature, that we can save the world and ourselves.

Comment from Augusto César Soares dos Santos
Engenheiro Agrônomo, M. Sc. in Irrigation Engineering
Coordenador - RURALMINAS, Governo de Minas
Signatory - Brazil Indonesia Friendship Association

I enjoyed very much your speeches during the Earth Dialogues.
Now, that you have put them in a book, it allows me to have a complete understanding of your thoughts and feelings. You are a rare combination of true philosopher, gentleman and spiritual/environment activist.
I congratulate you and agree with you that we must together and jointly respond to the environment and climate issues to save this planet.
It is an honor for me to be part of your book by writing these few lines.

For more information about this book please visit www.balibelohorizonte.com